

Dr. Ph.d Ishikawa Yasuko

Doctor in Immunology, studied at the Juntendo University in Tokyo where she received a Ph.D in immunology. Author of various non-fiction books about science, art and German literature was also the author of two important biographies: one on Sumiko Mikimoto and the other, in 2001, about Chieko Hara, the Japanese women that so much influenced the life and the art of the famous cellist Gaspar Cassado`. In 2001 translated from German the Goethe`s son diary. Recently was the author of various articles about Immunology. CEO of the “BeeBest” company and researcher at the Atopy Center at the Juntendo University, she is also Board Member of the Machida Design Academy. Passionate supporter of young talents in the performing art world has recently sponsored the GCP in Tokyo, an art firm, devoted to the promotion of young Japanese musicians and of culture exchange projects between Italy and Japan. Dr. Ishikawa lives currently in Machida city (Japan) where she works and study.

Education

1982/03: Studied German language at the Dokkyo University Faculty of language

1982/03: Entered at the Tokyo Metropolitan University Faculty of Urban Environmental

2002/09: Entered at the Tokyo Metropolitan University Graduate School of Human Health

2007/03: Entered at the Tokyo University of Agriculture Graduate School of Food Science

2009 /03: Entered at the Juntendo University Graduate School of Medicine. Ph.D Immunology

International Working Experiences

1982/04: Worked at the Akai Co. Ltd in Frankfurt - Germany

1983/05 ~ 1984/ 04: Lived and studied Italian language in Florence - Italy

1984/05: Left Germany and come back to Japan

Books & Articles

- 1995/10: Published an important article on “Old Japanese Antique Furniture” for the Japanese Heibonsha publishing company.
- 1996/10: Published an article on the legendary Japanese pianist Chieko Hara
- 2000/12: Published an article on the great German Poet Johann Wolfgang von Goethe
- 2001/06: Translated from German the Johann Wolfgang von Goethe’s son diary
- 2001/11: Published a biography on the legendary Japanese pianist Chieko Hara
- 2002/09: Published an important article on “The sound of architecture” of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe
- 2004/05: Published a book on the medical properties of Bee Pollen
- 2005/03: Published an article on Bee Pollen for a prestigious magazine
- 2007/03: Published an article on the healing properties of Bee Pollen on allergies
- 2008-03: Dr. Ishikawa scientific dissertation on the “Inhibitory Effect of Honeybee-Collected Pollen on Mast Cell Degranulation in vivo and in vitro” was published on the Journal of Medicinal Food. She received the Ph.d in Immunology from the Juntendo University in Japan.
- 2009/07: Published a biography on the historical figure of Mikimoto Sumiko.
- 2013/05/17: “Abruzzo Misterioso” – The first ever Japanese book on Abruzzo (Italy)

Dr. Ph.d Ishikawa Yasuko

Philanthropist

Music has always been the passion of Dr. Ishikawa. Since 1994 she promoted and supported several artists organizing home concerts. Her constant passion towards music, art and people made possible, in 2011, the opening of the GCP (Galileo Culture Planning), an “art-section” of the ”BeeBest” that is fully devoted to the support of talented artists. Dr. Ishikawa firmly believes in the healing power of “music” and “art” especially in nowadays frenetic life style. This experience will give to young artists a unique chance to be inspired through the history, architecture, people and music of the “Western world” offering them the opportunity to visit and study in Italy.